HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily disease the entire system? The plainest principles of common sense teach this and yet there are hundreds who ridicule the idea, and continue in the course which almost inevitably brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of the people do, at complete variance with the laws of nature, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that persons who indulge to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating drinks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomach becomes disordered and refuses to act: the liver fails to perform its functions, dyspepsia and its attendant evils follow, and still the suffering individuals persist in clinging to the thoroughly exploded idea of the past. Dr. SCHENK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their reputation with every ailing man or woman in the lands a fair and impartial trial of them. Let those who are skeptical on this point, and who have permitted interested persons to prejudice them against these now celebrated remedies for consumption, discard their prejudices, and be governed by the principles of reason and common sense. If the system is disordered depend upon it, in nine cases out of ten the seat of the disorder will be found in the stomach and liver. To cleanse and invigorate the stomach and to stimulate the liver to healthy action, use

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.—The daily increasing demand for these pills is the best evidence of their value. Thousands upon thousands of boxes are sold daily. Why? Simply because they act promptly and effectually. Invalids who may not find it convenient to call on Dr. SCHENCK in person are informed that full and complete directions for use accompany each package of the

MANDRAKE PILLS, PULMONIC SYRUP AND SEAWEED TONIC.—These medicines will cure consumption unless the lungs are so far gone that the patient is entire ly beyond the reach of medical relief.

It may be asked by those who are not familiar with the virtues of these great remedies, "How do Dr. Schenck's medicines effect their wonderful cures of consumption?" The answer is a simple one. They begin their work of restoration by bringing the stomach, liver and bowels into an active healthy condition. It is food that cures this formidable disease. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS act on the liver and stomach, promoting healthy secretion, and removing the bile and slime which have resulted from the inactive or torpid condition of those organs, and of the system generally. This sluggish state of the body, and the consequent accumulation of the unhealthy substances named prevent the proper digestion of food, and, as a natural consequence, creates disease, which results in prostration and finally in death.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP and SEAWEED TONIC, when taken regularly, mingle with the food, and the digestive organs, make good and rich blood, and as a natural consequence, give flesh and strength to the patient. Let the faculty say what it may, this is the only true cure for consumption. Experience has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, and thousands are to-day alive and well who a few years since were regarded as hopeless cases, but who were induced to try Dr. SCHENCK'S remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.

One of the first steps the physician should take with a consumptive patient is to invigorate the system. Now how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that exhaust and enervate—medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs. Doctor SCHENCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them. They create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a consequence, they invigorate and strengthen the entire system and more especially those parts which are diseased It this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as a hopeless one.

If the physician finds it impossible to make a patient feel hungry, if the deceased person cannot partake of good nourishing food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can gain in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a patient to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with diseased bile, and the stomach laden with unhealthy slime.

Almost the first request made to the physician by a consumptive patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption. But this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relieve itself, and the night sweats and chills are caused by the diseased lungs. The remedies ordinarily prescribed do more harm than good. They impair the functions of the stomach, impede healthy digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the disease.

There is, after all, nothing like facts which to substantiate a position, and it is upon fact that Dr. Schenck's relies. Nearly all who have taken his medicines in accordance with his directions have not only been cured of consumption, but, from the fact that these medicines act with wonderful power upon the digestive organs, patients thus cured speedily gain flesh. Cleansing the system of all impurities, they lay the foundation for a vigorous substantial structure. Restoring those organs to health, they create an appetite. The food is properly assimilated the quantity of blood is not only increased, but is made rich and strong and in the face of such a condition of the system all disease must be banished.

Full directions accompany each of the medicines, so that it is not absolutely necessary that patients should see Dr. SCHENCK personally, unless they desire to have their lungs examined. For this purpose he is at his office, No. 15 North Sixth Street, in the city of Philadelphia, every saturday, from 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.

Advice is given without charge, but for a thorough examination with the lungs-rometer the charge is $5.

Our Duty and Destiny as a Nation.

BY H. G. B.

"Give ear, O my people, to my law; incline your ear to the words of my mouth."
Shall "the voice of thy brother's blood" cry from the ground to God for vengeance?

AMERICA—DISCOVERY.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—This our country seems destined by Providence to fill many of the most important pages in human history. Whilst the nations of the old world were rising and falling to pieces—whilst the four great empires of antiquity in the east were succeeding each other through rivers of human blood, to glut the ambition of cruel tyrants, this western continent was and had been, for thousands of years, revolving in the womb of time, unknown to the contestants for universal empire, and thus shielded from the grasp of wicked men.

And thus it revolved, whilst countless occult events which to human view had no connection, but which in the hand of God were all connected, and all converging to accomplish the discovery and peopling this great country of ours. There was the revival of literature, the art of printing, the mariner's compass, &c., all tending to some great event unknown to all but God, who alone could evolve such mighty and benevolent results; and thus ten thousand events without connection to human view formed that invisible and insoluble chain; or rather the warp and woof from which a single thread or fiber could not be spared, extending from the creation of man down to the year 1436, when a poor, fragile, weeping babe was born in Genoa, the son of a wool carder. Of this babe we know but little till we find him in college, and at the age of fourteen we find Christopher Columbus in school outstripping his fellow students, and all the schools of that age, in the imperfect sciences of mathematics, astronomy and geography. Then we find him in command of a merchant ship, next engaged in command of a war ship, from which when it was on fire he had to save his life by plunging into the sea. But notwithstanding his active life he labored earnestly and successfully in expanding the then narrow boundaries of geographical and astronomical science. The result of these labors was the full conviction either of a western continent or the possibility of reaching the eastern coast of Asia by sailing westward. He became an enthusiast, his theory was the absorbing one of all his labors, it was the very essence of his soul. But like all men who step forth in advance of the age in which they live, he became the derision of fools, and was despised by proud senators and princes, to whom he promised a vast empire for the pittance of a poor outfit for the contemplated voyage of discovery. After suffering from poverty, contumely, persecution and contempt, we find him in Spain traveling upon foot in all the habiliments of poverty, leading by the hand a poor, motherless boy, seeking alms at a little convent called Santa Maria de Rabeda. Next we find him after many repulses, pleading at the magnificent court of Ferdinand and Isabella, for aid to accomplish his grand design. And here, after the poor beggar had touched the heart of a noble princess, and secured her sympathy, he was doomed to plead his cause before a court council of monks, who decided that nothing could be more absurd and impious than the idea of antipodes. Thus poor Columbus found himself denounced as either an impostor, a fool or the prince of heretics In despair, forsaken, in poverty and alone, he started again on foot, leaving that ill governed court where his soul had for many years been worne and sorely grieved between hope and despair, in order to offer his undiscovered empire to some more magnanimous patron. But when his noble friend Isabella had learned that he was gone, she immediately sent after him, had him brought back, plighted her crown jewels, being all she could give, but by her influence several wealthy individuals assisted in raising means for the outfit of vessels for the desperate enterprise; and on the 3d of August, 1492, in the 56th year of his age, we find Columbus in his poor, fragile fleet, with 120 seamen, casting themselves upon those unknown seas from which their return was nearly hopeless. But after suffering from the most intense anxiety from the dangers of unknown seas, the mutiny of his men, and the most awful suspense with which human bosom ever heaved, for over two months, we find him on the morning of the 12th of October, 1492, taking possession of an American Island, whence the main land was soon discovered, and the existence of our country was proclaimed to the old world.

The God of Providence deferred the discovery of the new empire until the power of a cruel hierarchy was being broken down, and unable to take possession of these United States.

GOD'S DESIGNS.

God was working out his vast designs from countless causes. After the birth of Columbus, but before his great discovery, and immediately after, there was born in Europe those children, such as Luther, Calvin, Zwingle, and others, who when they grew up to manhood snatched the Bible from its long imprisonment in monasteries, tore from its sacred pages the seals placed upon it by authority at Rome, and read it to astonished Europe. The people found it to be their own book, and that it was the grand charter of all their rights, civil and religious; the clouds of darkness were rolled back, and the people who had long sat in darkness, groaning under the hand of tyranny, began to throw off their chains, and throb for that liberty which is the birthright of every human being. Thus after a long night of gloomy inertia, in which our planet had revolved in moral darkness, a mournful spectacle to other worlds, who once looked upon it as the grandest theatre amidst the glorious volume of creation, America was discovered, and the Bible was again unsealed, and its sacred pages were read by millions of our ruined race.

The untutored savage may follow the Mississippi up to its thousand sources in the mountains of the west, but can go no farther; but the philosopher can follow the vapor from the face of the ocean into the clouds; he counts them as they are wafted over the mountains; he can tell why they are condensed into rain drops to fall upon the mountains and valleys, to send out those springs which give drink to the beasts of the field; he counts the millions of rivulets and drippings from the brooats of the Rocky Mountains, all converging to form the father of waters; he can follow the mighty stream to the ocean, witness its magnitude, sufficient to carry the commerce of the world, and he can tell why "all the rivers run into the sea and still that it is not full." And so the historian can lead us on its pathway up to the birth of Columbus, and that of other great benefactors of humanity.

But who can unroll the dark pages of occult history back to its source? Who can count the links of that chain extending from the morning of creation up to the throne of God, or count the endless succession of alternating causes and effects? Who but the Omniscient God, who seeth the end from the beginning, can comprehend such a vast volume? Or who but the Omnipotent God, whose "council shall stand and who will do all his pleasure," is equal to the government of his vast empire? Who but a God of infinite wisdom is equal to harmonizing the apparently conflicting events of daily occurrence; to bring all the works of creation and Providence into subordination to his moral government, and all converge to his kingdom of grace, and finally to the consummation of his kingdom of glory?

But short sighted though we are, we can by analogical reason, clearly perceive that our national existence was suspended upon a chain of events extending back to the first man, that the severance of a single link would have ruined all, and that the hand of God alone could bring out the grand results from occult events, or events of small importance to human view, and, finally, give us a nationality of such vast importance in the history of the Earth.

Accordingly we find that at an eventful period, when countless streams of providences, from the time "the morning stars sang together when the sons of God shouted for joy," all directly or remotely connected, because all resulted from one mind, and all contributed to prepare the world for a new people, a new history and a new impulse to intellectual and moral light and human liberty; then God sifted the nations of the old world to collect a chosen seed to plant in this our beloved land, and guided them by his unerring hand to the then inhospitable shores of North America. Could you give tongues to the Plymouth Rock, the river May, Jamestown and other early settlements, they could tell thrilling tales of the sufferings of our ancestors for their love of christian liberty.

A MOMENTOUS HISTORY.

Then commences one of the most momentous histories upon earth's records. It relates how the old European hierarchy followed our fathers in order to strike down their freedom; how, though few in number and very poor, they drove from our shores the most powerful empire on earth, in shame, and forced them to acknowledge our liberty; how that in but little over two centuries we have increased from a few hundreds to nearly forty millions of souls, and how we have increased in wealth and education till we may claim to be the most powerful nation upon the earth. Now, since we justly claim to be the most highly privileged people upon earth, we must not forget that privilege always implies corresponding responsibility. If we as a nation neglect our duty, we may read our doom in the ruins of Nineveh, Babylon and Jerusalem, once great and glorious, but for lack of morality they now lie in ruin, forsaken of God and man. But on the contrary if we are governed by wisdom, justice and mercy, doubtless our future history is destined to be as glorious as the past is wonderful; and on the presumption of a wise and benevolent government, if we may judge from the past, we may confidently anticipate a population of over four hundred millions before another century passes away, and that the children are now born who will live to constitute part of a population of over three hundred millions. With such a population and with corresponding wealth and wisdom, we may fairly anticipate the conquest of the world, not by the sword, but by the Bible, with its beams of genial light and liberty, and by the divergent waves of our practical influence upon benighted nations, now groaning under the iron heel of cruel tyrants, still struggling to keep their subjects in moral and intellectual darkness. But in the hands of such a nation as we anticipate, their chains must melt away, and their thrones must totter and fall, never to rise again to deluge the earth in blood.

Ask the philosopher how such a republic as ours, in all its refinement and all its glory, sprung from such gross degradation as characterized our Anglo-Saxon, Teutonic and Celtic ancestors, and he can not tell; but ask the christian and he points to his Bible as the only efficient cause. Ask the philosopher why the difference between republican France and republican America, and neither he cannot or he will not tell. But ask the christian why the former deluged the land in human blood, and then fell into the hands of a cruel despot, because unfit for self government, whilst the latter has had such an unparalleled success, and he at once replies that a cruel hierarchy sealed the Bible against the people of France, whilst our fathers carried the word of God in their bosom with his spirit in their hearts, whilst laying the foundation of this glorious republic of ours. Or if you ask why the people of South America and Mexico have struggled in vain for over two hundred years to secure that liberty which is the birthright of every human being, and the answer is plain: they have been too long subject to that cruel tyrant seated on the seven hills who forbid the people to read their Bibles. And from similar reasons we fear that Spain, now throbbing for liberty, will struggle in vain. But judging from the past, we may confidently predict that they are doomed to struggle in vain till like our fathers they tear the seals from the Bible and open it to the people.

Great and glorious as we claim to be, we are envied, feared and hated as a nation; envied by the millions in Europe now struggling for liberty; feared and hated by the despots of the old world, who fear our influence upon their own subjects, and hate us because we teach equality of rights to all. We are hated worst of all by the prince of darkness, who has labored with too much success for nearly sixteen thousand years to enslave our race, and we have ample evidence that he is not wearied in evil doing, but remains that cunning, insidious and industrious devil which he always was, and will remain so till one stronger than he shall shut him up in chains of darkness for evermore.

EVILS.

Now we have nothing to fear from external foes if we make a wise improvement of our ample means of protection. But alas, notwithstanding all our high privileges, we have ample evidence of that pervasive moral depravity which has characterized all our predecessors; that we have amongst us the seeds of national dissolution, and that the fate of the great empires of earth which rose to power and set in blood, must be our fate, if we do not rise in our might and set bounds to the growing evil in our land. Countless though these evils are, all of which are grounds of lamentation, we shall only call attention to four of them which we deem of paramount importance, either of which if not arrested is more than sufficient to sap the foundation of our glorious national institutions, and consign us to the destiny of all the nations who have forgotten God. Therefore we would from deep obscurity utter as from the tomb of nations, a warning voice against that flood of French and German infidelity which is pouring in upon us like a torrent, which finds too easy a lodgment in the depraved human heart.

POPERY.

Then there is Popery with her hierarchal chief seated upon the seven hills, now in ecumenical council, claiming the old dogma of infallibility, and our country represented at Rome by a priesthood who would authorize the Pope again to seal the Bible against the people, and place it upon the list of proscribed books, in order to extinguish that light which led our ancestors to America, and in order that by covering the people with moral and intellectual darkness they may fall an easy prey to the tyranny of a cruel foreign prince, himself a subject of the prince of darkness. Permit him to carry out his diabolical designs, and the scenes of the reign of terror in France would be but a faint illustration of the condition of our country before half a century. Will you, fellow-citizens, fold your arms in apathy, or smile over your Bible banished from your schools, from your families, and from your own hearts, with such direful consequences staring you in the face?

CORRUPTION IN HIGH PLACES.

Then there is corruption in high places. It is feared that this evil is lamentably increasing. Are our Senate chambers and legislative halls to become arenas, where the people's representatives are sold and bought like sheep in the shambles? Are they to pass unrebuked who Judas like betray the people by false pretenses and guile, cheat them out of their votes, and then cheat them out of their rights and their hard earned money, to be squandered in drunkenness, debauchery and crime. And will you, fellow-citizens, like children in pursuit of a grasshopper, be any longer carried away with old party names, which have long since ceased to have any significance in their application to principle? or will you not arise from your apathy, sound an alarm, concentrate your force, and hurl from seats of honor and high responsibility a set of mean and beggarly scoundrels, who would feast and fatten upon the blood and sweat of an unsuspecting and confiding constituency? Arise from your lethargy or it may soon be too late to save our country from the hands of unprincipled villains.

☞ The most beautiful may be the most admired and caressed, but they are not always the most esteemed and loved. And thus, in art and in life, we learn that great lesson of practical wisdom, while we look upward to the stars, not to trample on the flowers that lie at our feet.

Weston and his Fifty Miles.

The Best Time Yet—The Walker Cook of The Walk.

Well, Weston has proved after all that he is no humbug, having accomplished fifty miles in nine hours and fifty-eight seconds, perhaps the greatest pedestrian feat on record. A New York paper gives the following graphic description of Weston's performance: At first he walked at an easy pace, but on accomplishing the first mile, he strode away at the rate of five miles an hour. He appeared to be in fine condition, and all his friends were confident that he would win. The band played lively airs, and as the day advanced the crowd of visitors increased. A colored gentleman attended to Mr. Weston's wants from time to time, and took every precaution that no accident should occur. At the end of every mile was put upon the bulletin, and the band played the most appropriate selections.

Great drops of sweat began to fall from the pedestrian's face, after he had accomplished a few miles, and at almost every round he called for lemonade. He gained time slowly, and when he had walked twenty miles he had several minutes to spare. About five o'clock preparations were made for the pedestrian to stop and rest.—Blankets were spread, and a chair was placed beside the track of him to sit in, but he paid no attention to his friends and kept on his course. Finally he halted, dropped into the chair, and was immediately covered with a blanket. He ate rapidly from a bowl of crackers and coffee, and in an incredible short space he was on his journey again. A child with golden curls threw him kisses, and as he moved away her silver voice bade him good-bye. By nine o'clock all the seats were occupied, and every car brought more people to the spot. The excitement increased every moment and the band played with renewed vigor. Weston continued to increase his speed as the hour of ten approached. The police were active, but they found it no easy task to keep back the excited multitude. Twelve minutes ahead was announced, and the vast building rang with cheers. "One mile more gentlemen" was the cry, and then the crowd swayed to an fro, and the band played favorite selections from Offenbach. Weston seemed to gain strength as he walked, and the waiter had to run when he wished to communicate with him. Toward the close of the great feat a smile illuminated the pedestrian's face and an arch of uplifted arms spanned the pathway nearly around the rink. "Thirteen minutes and fifty-five seconds ahead!" cried one of the judges, as the hero stepped on the platform, and clasped his wife and child. He then walked four times around the rink backwards making the following time. The distance is half a mile; 1st time, 9 minutes 47 seconds; 2d time, 2 minutes 40 seconds; 3d time, 2 minutes 33 seconds; 4th time, 2 minutes 37 seconds. Total, 10 minutes 37 seconds.

The time consumed by Mr. Weston in walking the fifty miles was nine hours fifty-eight minutes and fifty-five seconds, according to the City Surveyor's measurement.

After accomplishing the feat he addressed the multitude, telling them that on the first of July he would start for Europe where he proposes to walk four hundred miles in five consecutive days.

How Sheridan Went to See His Ride.

During the late meeting of the officers of the Army of the Potomac in this city, Mr. Pugh, the enterprising manager of poets, lecturers and artists, tendered to a number of the assembled heroes an invitation to visit the exhibition of Sheridan's Ride, at the Academy of Fine Arts. Most of them soon stood among the crowd of visitors before the celebrated picture, but Sheridan himself was too modest to look at his own picture at a time when hundreds of his fellow-countrymen were discussing both the painting and the man. But he would not leave the city without seeing the painting—few persons could do that—and he, therefore, went alone and early in the morning to see what Mr. Buchanan Read's idea of his ride would prove to be. How he liked the picture has not transpired. At all events, he exhibited no emotion which made him conspicuous, but without a doubt his heart throbbed with a quicker beat as the canvass recalled the stirring scenes. On leaving the hall he stopped for a moment before a chrome of the painting. The young man in attendance, ever anxious to extend the influence of Art, inquired of the visitor (without looking up from the book in which he was rapidly entering the sales of chromos,) if he would like to buy one of those pictures. "A capital likeness, sir, of general Sheridan," said he.

The Major General put his hands in the pockets of his citizen's dress and mildly replied that he did not care particularly for a likeness of Sheridan.

"But the horse, sir," said the young man. "That famous black horse.—there is no other picture of him in existence."

"Oh!" said General Sheridan, "I own the horse."

Over a Precipice.

From the Easton (Pa.) Express.)

Yesterday afternoon, while several little girls were engaged in plucking wild flowers amongst the rocks bordering on the north side of Mount Jefferson, one of them, a daughter of Mr. Daub, residing on the Lehigh, in reaching out was precipitated down the rugged and almost perpendicular hill-side a distance of about thirty feet. Fortunately her dress caught in some bushes, which prevented her from being dashed a lifeless, shapeless mass upon the rough rocks one hundred and eighty feet below. Our readers will remember that this occurred at the place where the solid walls of the hill rise almost perpendicularly to a height of about two hundred and twenty-five feet above the Bushkill, and is considered almost impassible by any but the most daring and practical climber.—Here the little girl hung for some time with a horrible death awaiting her below, and the cracking and the bending of the brittle bushes warning her that but a few moments might separate her from her doom, while her little playmate above could only wring her hands and make her agony known by her prayers and shrieks. But no helping hand could reach her from the hill-top—and only death awaited for her at the bottom. At last the cries of the little one reached the ears of Messrs. Otto Voight and Samuel Schurch, of Phillipsburgh, who were then in the yard of the residence of the former, who at once rushed across the Bushkill to her relief. When they arrived at the foot of the hill and saw the fearful condition of the little sufferer and her frail support, Mr. Schurch at once threw off his coat, and with the daring agility displayed by his countrymen when they scale the cliffs of his own native Switzerland, he at once began to scale the steps of Mount Jefferson, and after much labor, and many a scratch in the dangerous ascent, he folded the bleeding little form in his strong arms, and held her firmly there until others came their assistance. Persons came there with ropes etc., and the child was securely fastened to a rope let down from above and gently drawn to the top when the rope was in turn fastened to Mr. Schurch, and he aided in making his perilous ascent to the top of the hill. The child was about 11 years of age, and sustained several bruises about the head. A deed so daring, so noble as that of Mr. Schurch's deserves more than a passing notice. The child's escape was a miraculous one indeed.

Steam vs Muscle.

Two young men from the country called in at a Detroit foundry a few days ago to get a piece of casting. The employes were absent at their dinners, with the exception of the engineer, who was oiling up his engine for the afternoon's work. It was running at full speed, and pumping water into the boiler. The country cousins looked with interest at its motions and the slow revolution of the large fly-wheel, and fell into a discussion as to the relative power of steam and human muscle. One of them finally offered to bet a dollar that he could "grab" the hugh wheel and hold it. He stepped up to the engineer, and asked permission to try it, which was readily granted, and taking off his coat and rolling up his sleeves, braced himself for the effort. Watching carefully until the right spoke came around, with a yell to encourage himself, he clutched it. He didn't exactly stop the wheel—in fact, he went over it without stopping, and was discharged in a parabolic orbit, through space, coming down in a sandheap in the further part of the foundry. He was picked up a thoroughly disgusted man, and so lame that he was obliged to climb into his wagon at the back end, quite satisfied, however, that steam was too much for him.

GREAT SNAKE HUNT IN OHIO.—On the 10th ult., at Big Island, township in Marion county, on the farm of Alex. Campbell, a great snake hunt occurred. The party was headed by Capt. Jackson Brady, who led his gallant company down into the tall prairie grass, and surrounded a twenty acre lot, set fire on the outer edge of the grass at 4 P. M. The grass burned well; the flames rolling up 10 feet high, and as the fire advanced the snakes retreated to the centre, sometimes making desperate efforts to spring through the flames, but the blaze being too heavy they were killed in the attempt. At 6.45 P. M., the ground was burned over, and Captain Brady went over the field of carnage and picked up the debris of the great army of snakes, and by actual count, there was found to be 13,988 snakes of all sizes. One black racer was nine feet and four inches long and seven inches in circumference.

This may be considered a good day's work for this neighborhood, as the snakes had become so bad that small children were afraid to go to school, and they even attacked some adults, several having been bitten on their boot, and it had become a common thing for fifty or a hundred snakes to chase men, women and children across this prairie. The milk snakes were constantly milking the cows, and thereby interfering with the dairy business in that section.—Marion (O.) Mirror.

ADDRESS OF GOV. GEARY.

To the Freemen of Pennsylvania.

FELLOW CITIZENS:—In receiving the various testimonials of confidence which have been conferred upon me by the people of my native State, I am deeply sensible of the circumstances under which they have been bestowed, and of the corresponding duties and responsibilities imposed upon me during the fulfillment of my term of the Chief Executive office in your State government. Notwithstanding a heart animated with pure and upright intentions toward the welfare of the commonwealth, and with all the faculties allotted to me unceasingly devoted to its service, I feel deeply conscious that I stand in need of your indulgence, while I thus exercise one of the prerogatives of the position of Governor—to address the people when in his opinion he is justified by circumstances affecting their welfare and interests; and to expect from them an honest, candid and liberal support in return.

With such circumstances now before the people of Pennsylvania, I feel that I would be recreant to my duty, ungrateful to a generous people, and untrue to myself, if I should fail to express to you my opinions upon a subject of public concern which demands from you immediate attention, and prompt, intelligent and independent action.

The inviolability of the Sinking Fund, by which your public debt is to be reduced and finally extinguished, must be maintained against all attacks upon it, whether open or secret! A public debt is not a blessing but an evil!—an evil not to be measured by the amount of the direct pecuniary burden it imposes upon the people, but by its whole effect,—the entire amount of all its consequences. These consequences have been pointed out so fully by the fathers of the republic, and by the most reliable writers upon political economy; and a conviction of them is so deeply impressed on the minds of all reflecting men, that I need not recapitulate them, nor insist even upon their existence.

The State debt must be paid: paid honestly and to the utmost farthing, and as soon as it can reasonably be done—to this doctrine I am irrevocably pledged in every possible manner; and the credit of the State must be kept up to its highest point, in order that this important object may be most readily accomplished. No belief or suspicion of bad faith or of profligacy, on our part, should be permitted to get abroad or to derive the slightest support or countenance from the conduct of our government in any of its branches. It should be understood everywhere that we have an incorruptible and faithful judiciary; a Legislature and an Executive disposed to work together, and to co-operate heartily in maintaining the honor of the commonwealth.

The operation of the Sinking Fund was temporarily interrupted, or rather weakened, by the recent war, but by the blessing of heaven upon the patriotic efforts of the nation the days of peace have returned. There can now be no excuse for diverting from that fund any of the moneys pledged to it by the constitution and the laws, nor for tampering in any manner with its regular administration.

But it is known to you that a bold and daring attempt was made in the legislature during its last session, to invade the Treasury and seize the proceeds of the sale of the public works of the State, deposited there, in the sinking fund, for the use of certain affiliated corporations of this Commonwealth, and that that attempt was defeated only by the interposition of the Executive veto. This was to me an ungracious and unpleasant task, to resist the majority in the legislature composed of Senators and Representatives chosen by you, under the regular forms of the Constitution, presumably for their intelligence and integrity; and it was inexpedient, perhaps, as a question of personal interest and ease, that I should incur the hostility of powerful enemies by the course adopted. But I saw before me the open path of duty, pointed out by the clear words of the Constitution and by my oath of office; and I did not hesitate to treat the subject with the firmness and action which the urgency of the case required.

The bill to distribute the securities in the sinking fund among several newly incorporated railroad companies, and to substitute for them very inferior, if not utterly worthless obligations, was sent to me only on the day next preceding the final adjournment of the legislature, although it had passed both houses about two weeks before. Borrowing time from the usual hours of rest, I was enabled, the next morning, to return the bill with my objections to the House, in which it had originated. There its further consideration was postponed, and no final judgment upon it was pronounced. It stands now among the open questions which may be revived at a future session. It may again be introduced and passed next winter or at any subsequent time, without embarrassment from any prior decision of either House against it. And if the membership of both houses shall be so made up at any time that a two-third vote for the measure can be obtained in each, its enactment into a law will become certain, and the burden of your taxes will be inevitably increased and prolonged.

An executive veto is in the nature of an appeal to the people, to enable them to pass upon controverted question of public policy or safety. Upon a question of this kind, in which every man, woman and child in the commonwealth is interested, this great prerogative of the Executive, conferred by the Constitution, should be fearlessly exercised. Is not this such an occasion? Is not the subject to be considered vitally important? Is it not urgent that you should determine it for yourselves, in the selection of men to represent you in the legislature of 1871?

Be this as it may, this question is in fact submitted for your judgment.—The issue upon it was distinctly and openly made at the last session between the legislature and the Executive, and that issue is now before you for your arbitrament, and you should instruct your representatives, in each and every county in accordance with your wishes and determination upon this important subject.

Should you, by your indifference to the question, or by a careless and uncalculating choice of the persons to represent you in the legislature, encourage and strengthen the combination of men who desire and threaten to invade your treasury, rest assured that the vast fund now sacredly devoted to the payment of the public debt will be seized and carried off.

The nine and a half millions of dollars of securities in that fund, with all the interest to accrue thereon, will be voted away from the people's treasury; the State credit will be prostrated; your taxes will be increased, and your Executive will be impotent to help you. If, on the contrary, alive to your interests and honor, you sustain the appeals sent to you from the Executive Chamber, and you are now about to select your candidates for representatives, you should determine to re-affirm, with emphasis, the command of the Constitution; that "no part of the said sinking fund shall be used or applied otherwise than in the extinguishment of the public debt," you will strike a just, severe and timely blow at corrupt legislation and protect yourselves against grievous pecuniary loss.

The lesson will not be lost. Its salutary effect will be great and lasting. Both for the present and the future it will improve the tone of public morals; repress the unblushing effrontery and corruption of the lobby; curtail the influence of arrogant corporations; and secure the sincere commendation of all good and patriotic men.

The assault upon the treasury, in the passage of the nine and a half million bill, though the most conspicuous example of the evil influences of corporations upon the legislature is not the only one. It possesses pre-eminent importance, but it does not stand alone. Then, fellow citizens, has not the time come for determining the question of title to sovereign power in this Commonwealth? Is that power a rightful and indefeasable estate of the people, or does it reside in incorporated companies created by our laws? Will you, with your eyes open consciously surrender the control over your own representatives, and give your consent that corporations shall decide your laws? Shall your government be pure, patriotic and just, true to yourselves, and true to sound principles of administration; or shall it be the instrument of corporate ambition and avarice, and an object of public jest, ridicule and reproach? Or, in other words, shall corporations supersede the government and become the masters of the people?

And now my fellow-citizens, with this warning, I leave this important subject in your hands; trusting that you will be inspired with the will and the resolution to defend the integrity of your government and to preserve unsullied the credit and the honor of the Commonwealth.

JOHN W. GEARY.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, Harrisburg, Pa., June 6, 1870.

Terrible Fire in Constantinople.

CONSTANTINOPLE, TURKEY, June 6—10 p. m.—A fire originated in a suburb of Pera on the Golden Horn, and, unchecked, it sped quickly on its devouring march through the most populous and wealthiest commercial quarter of the district. Mosques, bazaars, dwellings, theatres and other buildings were consumed with terrible rapidity. The scene was of fearful grandeur, presenting the aspect of a huge furnace.

Many of the escaping inhabitants, and numbers of those engaged in tearing down houses to prevent the spread of the flames, were buried under the falling masses of stones and timbers.

There has been no interruption of the terrible destruction, and the conflagration is still raging with unabated fury.

LATER.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 9.—The conflagration in the Pera quarter has been finally quenched. The scene of the disaster is desolate in the extreme, presenting a deplorable spectacle of ruin and ashes and smoking embers.

The number of buildings that have been destroyed by the fire and pulled down to prevent the spread is immense. The loss is enormous. The aggregate amount may be set down at five millions pounds sterling. The work of removing the rubbish and ruins will soon commence. Several bodies of persons killed by falling houses have been removed.

Death of Charles Dickens.

LONDON, June 10.—Last evening at 6:20, while Charles Dickens was attending a dinner party, he was struck with paralysis, and shortly afterwards expired. His death is a terrible shock to the community, being so sudden and unexpected. It has produced a universal gloom throughout this city and the country.

Mr. Dickens was entertaining a dinner party at his house at Gad's Hill. Miss Hogarth, who was seated near him, observed evident signs of distress upon his countenance. She then made the remark to him that he must be ill. To this Mr. Dickens replied, "Oh, no; I have only got a headache; I shall be better presently." He then asked that the open window be shut. Almost immediately he became unconscious, and fell back into his chair insensible. He was immediately conveyed to his room.

His son and daughters remained steadfastly at his decease. The ladies manifested many demonstrations of grief at the sad event, and the scene is described as mournful in the extreme.

DR. H. E. Shafer, editor of the Fulton Republican, was troubled by a loquacious lady, who hailed from this place. He writes:

"At Huntingdon a lady got on the train for East Liberty, ten miles this side of Pittsburgh, and kept up such an incessant chatter about nothing, that one was impressed with the idea that her jaws were gotten up on the perpetual motion plan. So tired did everybody become of her continual talk, that all were heartily glad when the conductor consented to stop at Liberty to let her off. Nothing is more annoying than to have a person sitting behind you who keeps up a continual chattering, when you are so situated that you are compelled to listen to it."

The new Presbyterian church in Hollidaysburg is to cost about $40,000. The first services were held in the chapel on the 5th inst.

The Bellefonte Republican came to us last week in an enlarged and improved form. We hope its idea of peace will be realized in consolidation.

The receipts of Van Amburg's menagerie, at Lancaster, for a single day, were $8,096. We should think they were nearly $2000 in this place.

A Normal School is to be built at West Chester, Pa., ten acres of ground having been purchased for that purpose.

Grady's monkey, which strayed away at Bloody Run, has been captured. What a pity! We thought Furey had such a splendid chance to show himself to a good advantage.

Mr. Wm. P. Orbison has been chosen President of the First National Bank of Huntingdon, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Mr. Jas. M. Bell.

A pair of shoes and a pair of brown stockings were lost on the opposite side of the river between the two bridges, last week. The finder will please return them to this office.

The novel sight of a man spanking a woman occurred in a strawberry patch, in Bloomfield the other day.—The woman not liking such treatment prefered a warrant for his appearance at court.

The bonds for effecting the finishing of the Sunbury & Lewistown railroad, to the amount of $1,200,000, were taken by Hon. A. K. McClure, acting, it is understood, for Thomas Scott, V. P. of the Pennsylvania railroad.

The Bellefonte Watchman says the Democratic convention of editors at Altoona bids fair to be a grand success. Meek, that isn't fair that you should have the inside track on such "bids." Let your brothers know something about what "course" you intend to take. Will it be a 'straight?'

We have no hesitation in saying that Van Amburg's Menagerie which exhibited here on Saturday last, was the best thing of the kind that ever visited this place. The canvass remained up over Sunday, and the employees gave evidence that they as well as their employers had respect for the sacred day.

ACCIDENTS.

A Man Killed.—On Saturday morning last, Mr. Nathan Denny, a watchman on the Pennsylvania Railroad, residing at Warriorsridge station, five miles above Huntingdon, was run over by a freight train, and almost instantly killed. He was seen sitting on the track by the engineer, who whistled, but it is supposed he was sound asleep and did not hear it. The cars passed over his right foot below the knee, and his head and face were so badly bruised that he must have been instantly killed. A dog that always accompanied him was also hurt by the same train, and it showed its fidelity to its master even in death. It was run over first and seeing its master was dead it crawled up and lied down on his feet, and when the train was stopped, it resisted the efforts of the trainmen to remove the body. Mr. Denny was about sixty years of age, and was one of the most faithful watchman in the employ of the company, having acted in that capacity ever since the road was constructed. He leaves a large family. His remains were interred in the cemetery of this place on Sunday afternoon last, and a large concourse of citizens attended the funeral.

A Man Drowned.—Mr. William Sankoy was drowned on Saturday afternoon last, under peculiar circumstances. He was on his way home, and while walking down the steps of the stone bridge over Strone Creek below town he made a mis-step and fell into the water, which was high and rapid from the recent rains. He was not seen to rise after he fell in.

On Sunday evening his body was discovered in some drift a short distance below where he had fallen in.—There was an ugly wound in his skull which was caused in his fall.

Mr. S. lived in Henderson township, about five miles from here and being a drinking character it is said his death has been occasioned by this destructive habit. In his frequent visits to town he was often assailed by boys, and tormented by them, his innocence being the incentive of their ungentlemanly sport.

Another Man Almost Drowned.—On Thursday evening last during the heavy rain, Mr. Benj. Herncame, residing about a mile below town, met with an accident which almost resulted in his getting a watery grave. He was lifting the gates of the wastewier, when the crank he was using broke loose and he was thrown into the stream, drawn through the culvert by the current, and was being carried down the river at a rapid rate, when Mr. Daniel Pope discovered him, and waded in in time to save him. He was unconscious when taken out of the water, but soon recovered.

Destructive Flood.

About half-past four o'clock on Thursday afternoon last a torrent of rain fell at this place, which continued for three hours or more, almost incessantly, and was followed by a constant shower all night. The consequence was the streams were all swollen, and the water from the hills to the north of town ran through the streets, and overflowed them at all the crossings, some of them being one sheet of water. Muddy Run was very high, and the water came with such force against the piers of the bridge near the Baptist church as to sweep one side away, and carry off part of the board walk. The same stream put out the fires in Mr. Frank Heffright's brick kiln, and other damage was done in the yard by the rain as to make his loss about six hundred dollars.

On Friday evening about the same time, a rain came from the same direction, (north-east,) and was as heavy as the one the day before. The streets were again flooded, and the streams were high. Stone Creek overflowed its banks and invaded the fields adjoining to some distance. Mr. Heffright's kiln was again extinguished, much to the damage of the burning brick, and in town many of the cellars were full of water, which destroyed the eatables and valuables stored there.

We learn that a railroad bridge at McConnellstown was swept away; the B. T. Railroad bridge across the race at this place was damaged, thus delaying the passage of trains; and some of the road bridges over Stone Creek and Mill Creek are also in a dilapidated condition. The flood has been equally destructive to the heretofore promising grain. Whole fields of corn were washed, and some wheat and other grain fields have been beaten down so effectually that fears are entertained of their being worth anything to the owners.

[COMMUNICATED.]

Fire at McVeytown.

Mr. Editor:—On last Sabbath morning, a little after one o'clock, we were roused from peaceful slumber by the cry of fire. We hastened to the canal bridge to witness the entire destruction of Dull's large flouring mill, with his newspaper mill recently built in connection with the former. This fire was the most sublime sight we ever witnessed, or desire to see in this world. There were in the grist mill four or five thousand bushels of grain, and a very large quantity of finished paper in the paper mill, all of which added fuel to the conquering flames, which defied all human effort from the time it was first discovered. In a few minutes the whole was wrapped in lurid flames in pyramidical form of awful height and grandeur.

Thus in a few moments, the hard labor of many anxious years may be swept away by those very elements which are essential to human life when carelessly and wickedly perverted.—This lamentable affair involving a loss of perhaps twenty thousand dollars was the work of incendiaries. Alas! that demons in human form must be permitted to mingle with man, and glut their bitter vengeance upon the unoffending inhabitants of earth. Alas that others claiming places in society can exult over the sorrows of the bereaved. Alas alas, for poor, fallen humanity. There was only an insurance of four thousand dollars on the property. H. B. C.

Youthful Thieves.

Two boys entered the Pennsylvania warehouse on Tuesday morning last and stole ten dollars from the vest pocket of Mr. Stewart Allen, one of the employees. The boys had been watched by Mr. A for some time, and while he was away they committed the theft. They left on an eastern train, when Mr. Allen telegraphed and they were arrested at Mifflin and acknowledged to the theft, and said they had bought suits of clothes with the money, and represented they were from Harrisburg. They were reprimanded for their conduct and allowed to go free.

☞ Hearth and Homo for this week (dated June 25th) contains the first of a series of sketches entitled "Jethro Throop's Night Thoughts," by John Thomas, who is no other than Petroleum V. Nasby. The great humorist will take an honest country boy to the city, conduct him through the usual experience, and restore him to his home a sadder and wiser boy, satisfied that the peaceful, honest, and temperate life of the farmer is the best and safest life that can be lived. This is a lesson greatly needed at this time, and Nasby is the man to teach it.

☞ It is a rich treat to always have good bread on your table, and those persons are foolish who do not procure it. We tasted some of the best last week that it was ever our pleasure to enjoy; it was white, light and palatable. The secret of it was that it came from the Union Steam Bakery of Mr. Luke Reilly, in this place, who has attained universal celebrity for making good Bread, Cakes, etc., and does his best to maintain it.

Large Strawberries.

We received last week from Capt. H. C. Weaver, six of the largest strawberries that it was ever our pleasure to look upon. One of them was two inches long, five and one-quarter inches in circumference, and weighed within a small fraction of an ounce. The six berries weighed over two ounces. We doubt whether any other strawberry can be found to equal this one; if it can we would like to see it.

The Odd Fellows of this place intend celebrating the 4th of July. We are glad something is to be done. But wouldn't it be as well if the dear people could be treated to a sight of a parade of all the orders, so that they might know who the terrible fellows are?

MARRIED,

On the 2d inst., by Rev. James C. Clarke, Mr. JESSE L. SHORE, and Miss MAGGIE J. MILLER, both of Hunt. co.

DIED,

June 1st, near Airy Dale, Huntingdon county, Mrs. MARTHA J., wife of J. N. Hamilton, in the 97th year of her age.

Once more has death entered that household and taken the wife and mother. Consumption, that fell destroyer, marked her for its victim. She leaves a husband and four motherless little ones behind. In all the relations of life—daughter, sister, wife, friend—she was a noble example to her sex, one that might be followed without going astray; naturally of a religious turn of mind, her every day life was marked by christian charity, love and kindness, characteristics which made her the dispenser of peace at home, and a shining light to the church. But neither beauty of person or mind, neither filial affection or reverence for the Almighty could turn aside the icy hand of death, neither the skill of the Physician, the love of husband and relatives, or the warm sympathy of friends could stay the insidious attacks of the destroyer. Though the deceased was in the noon-tide of life, surrounded by every comfort to make existence desirable, she gave up all without a murmur—manifesting in death as well as in life the sublime reverence for the Heavenly Father—"Thy will not mine be done." ADDRESS

TO THE

NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED.

WHOSE SUFFERINGS HAVE BEEN PROTRACTED FROM HIDDEN CAUSES, AND WHOSE CASES REQUIRE

PROMPT TREATMENT.

TO RENDER EXISTENCE DESIRABLE

If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpitation of the heart? Does your liver, or urine organs, or your kidneys, get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or flocky, or is it ropy on settling? Or does a thick skum rise to the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspepsia? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on this subject? Do you feel dull, listless, moping, tired of company, of life? Do you wish to be left alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the lustre of your eye as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and dagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so, do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you rest less nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver complaint?

Now, reader, self-abuses, venereal diseases badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the generative organs. The organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Did you ever think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose organs are in perfect health? You never hear such men complain of being melancholy, of nervousness, of palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad and discouraged, they are always polite and pleasant in company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your downcast looks or any other meanness about them. I do not mean those who keep the organs inflated by running to excess. Those will not only ruin their constitution, but those they do business with or for.

How many men, from badly cured diseases, from the effects of self abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in these organs that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease—idiocy, lunacy, paralysis, spinal affections, suicide, and almost every form of disease humanity is heir to—and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have doctored for all but the right one.

ROSADALIS

THE Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and thousand of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis send for our Rosadalis Guide to Health or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore says:—

I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadal. is as a very powerful alterative. I have been it used in two cases with happy results—one in case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of all alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of scrofula and secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleanse of the blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. McFaddan, Murfreboro', Tennessee, says:

I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benjamin Bechtol, of Lima, Ohio, writes, I have suffered for twenty years with an in veterate eruption over my body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

Rosadalis is sold by John Read and S. S. Smith, Huntingdon, Pa., and Druggists generally.

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

XIX.

SOILS AND FERTILIZERS.

A farmer is a manufacturer of articles wherefrom mankind are fed and clad; his raw materials are the soil and the various substances he mingles therewith or adds thereto in order to increase its productive capacity. His art consists in transforming by cultivation crude, comparatively worthless, and even noxious, offensive materials into substances grateful to the senses, nourishing to the body, and sometimes invigorating, even strengthening, to the mind.

I have heard of lands that were naturally rich enough; I never was so lucky or perchance so discerning as to find them. Yet I have seen Illinois bottoms whereof I was assured that the soil was fully sixteen feet deep, and a rich, black alluvium from top to bottom; and I do not question the statements made to me from personal observation that portions of the strongly alkaline plain or swale on which Salt Lake City is built, being for the first time plowed, irrigated, and sown Wheat, yielded ninety bushels of good grain per acre. I never saw, yet on evidence believe, that pioneer settlers of the Miami Valley, wishing, some years after settling them, to sell their farms, advertised them as peculiarly desirable in that the barns stood over a creek or a "branch," which swept away the manure each Winter or Spring without trouble to the owner; and I have myself grown both Wheat and Oats that were very rank and heavy in straw, yet which fell so flat and lay so dead that the heads scarcely bore a kernel. Had I been a wiser, better farmer, I should have known how to stiffen the straw and make it do its office, in spite of wind and storm.

[And let me hear say, lest I forget it in its appropriate place, that I am confident that most farmers sow grain too thickly for any but very poor land. If one thinks it necessary to scatter three bushels of Oats per acre, I tell him that he should apply more manure and less seed—that land which requires three bushels of seed is not rich enough to bear Oats. He might better concentrate his manure on half so much land, and save two thirds of his seed.]

I do not hold that the remarkable rich soils I have instanced needed fertilizing when first plowed; I will presume that they did not. Yet, having never yet succeeded in manuring a corn-field so high that a few loads more would not (I judge) have increased the crop. I doubt whether even the richest Illinois bottoms would not yield more corn, year by year, if reenforced with the contents of a good barn-yard. And, when the first heavy crop of Corn has been taken from a field—no matter how deep and fertile its soil—is less rich in corn-forming elements than it was before. Just so sure as that there is no depletion or shrinkage when nothing is taken from nothing, so sure is it that something cannot be taking from something without diminishing its capacity to yield something at the next call. Rotation of crops is an excellent plan; for one may flourish on that which another has rejected; but this does not overbear Nature's inflexible exaction of so much for so much. Hence, if there ever was a field so rich that nothing could be added that would increase its productive capacity, the first exacting crop thereafter taken from it diminished that capacity and rendered a fresh application of some fertilizer desirable.

Years ago, a western man exhibited at our Farmer's Club a specimen of the soil of his regions which was justly deemed very rich, taken from a field whereon Corn had been repeatedly grown without apparent exhaustion. A chemical analysis had been made of it, which was submitted with the soil. It was claimed that nothing would improve its capacity for producing the great Illinois staple. Prof. Mapes dissented from this conclusion. "This soil," said he, "while very rich in nearly every element which enters into the composition of Corn, gives barely a trace of Chlorine, the base of Salt. Hence, if five bushels per acre of Salt be applied to that field, and it does not thereupon yield five bushels per annum more of Corn, I will agree to eat the field."

Many men fertilize their poor lands, only, supposing that the better can do without. I judge that to be a mistake. My rules would be to plant the poorest with such choice trees as thrive without manure, and pile the fertilizers upon the better. It seems to me plain that of two fields, one of which has a soil containing nine-tenths of the elements of the desired crop, while the other shows but one to three-tenths, it is a more hopeful and less thankless task to enrich the former than the latter. If you are required to supply to a field nearly every thing that your proposed crop will withdraw from it, I do not see where the profit comes in; but if you are required to supply but a tenth, because the soil as you found it stood ready to contribute the remaining nine-tenths, it seems to me that the margin for profit is here decidedly the greater.

How many tuns of earth ought a farmer to be obliged to turn over and over in order to obtain therefrom a hundred bushels of corn? Two hundred? Five hundred? A thousand? Five thousand? Other things being equal, no one will doubt that, if he can make the corn from one hundred tuns of soil, it were better to do so than to employ five hundred or five thousand. It seems clear to my mind that, though other conditions be unequal, it is generally well to endeavor to produce the required quantity from the smaller rather than the larger area.

I fully share the average farmer's partiality for barn-yard manure in preference to most, if not all, commercial fertilizers. In my judgment, almost any farmer who has cattle, with fit shelter and Winter fodder, can make fertilizers far cheaper than he can buy them. I judge that almost every farmer who has paid $100 or over for Guano (for instance,) might have more considerably enriched his farm by drawing muck from some convenient bog or pond into his barn-yard in August or September and carting it thence to his field the next Fall. If he can get no muck within a mile, let him cut when they are in blossom all the weeds that grow near him, especially by the road-side, cart them at once into his barn-yard, and there convert them into fertilizers. In autumn, replace the hay rack on the wagon or cart, and pile load after load of freshly fallen leaves into your yard, taking them if you may, from the sides of roads and fences, and from any place where they have been lodged or heaped by the winds, your own wood-lot excepted. Plow the turf off of any scurvy lot or road side, and pile it into the barnyard; nay, dig a hundred loads of pure clay, and place it there if you can get it at small expense, and your average soil is gravelly or sandy The farmer who is unable or reluctant to buy commercial fertilizers should apply his whole force every Autumn to replenishing his barnyard with that material which he can obtain most easily which the trampling of his cattle may readily convert into manure. A month is too little, two months would not be too much, to devote to this good work. Some may seem obliged to postpone it to Winter; but that is to run the risk of embarrassment by frost or snow, and encounter the certainty that your material will be inferior in quality, or not so well fitted to apply to grain-crops the ensuing Fall.

I closeby reiterating my belief that no farmer over yet impoverished himself by making too much manure or by applying too much of his own manufacture. I cannot speak so confidently of buying commercial fertilizers; but these I will discuss in my next.

McGUIRE'S

SPANISH HAR DRESSER

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH, BEAUTIFYING THE HAIR,

And rendering it dark and glossy. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair. The use of this oil as a hair dresser has been universal in every section of the country in the Spanish Main for centuries—No preparation of art could give that elegant luxuriance and abundance of hair which have so often been the admiration of travelers in Spain. This oil is highly and delicately perfumed, forming an article unrivaled in excellence and upon which the Spanish people for many years have set its seal of enduring approval.

McGUIRE'S

Mexican Wild Flowers Shampoo Lotion

For removing dandruff and scurf from the head, whitening and perfuming the skin. This article is entirely different from anything of the kind ever offered in this country and is warranted free from all poisonous substances This valuable lotion was used by the Emperor Maximilian, and Empress Carlotta of Mexico, and universally used by Mexicans for three hundred years. As a wash for the head—it is cooling, cleansing and refreshing—When thus used it at once relieves headache.

McGUIRE'S

WILD FLOWERS FOR THE TEETH.

All those who are in favor of white teeth and a pleasant and perfumed breath, should at once use McGuire's Wild Flowers for the Teeth. All these preparations are put up in the most elegant and ornamental manner. We make no exception in saying that they are an ornament to a lady's toilet table, and none complete without them.

Warranted satisfactory or money refunded. Dealers will bear this in mind. Sold by all respectable Druggists in the United States and Canadas. Address orders to

GET THE BEST

READY ROOFING

Suitable for all Buildings, Dwellings, Barns, Churches Factories, &c., and for all climates; equally adapted to flat or steep roofs, and can be applied by any ordinary workman.

THE READY ROOFING

Is more durable than tin, and does not cost one-half as much. It is cheaper than shingles, far more durable, and fire-proof. It is made of the best fent fabric ever used for the purpose, and is put up in rolls ready for shipment to any part of the world. Send for circular and samples (sent free.)

We also manufacture

GRANITE CEMENT,

For repairing all kinds of leaky roofs, chimneys, skylights, &c. This Roofing Cement forms a permanent adhesive coating over the whole surface of all roofs, whether tin, shingle or composition, completely closing up leakages, and being composed largely of ground granite, which sets and hardens, and soon becomes an artificial Slate or Stone covering.

ROOF PAINT,

For coating Tin and all kinds of metal and composition roofs. It will not run, crack, or peel off, but form a permanent and perfect protection, wherever placed. It is furnished at half the cost, and possesses twice the durability of the common oil paints used for such purposes.

County rights for sale.

SOLDIERS' HEIRS, ATTENTION!

The act of Congress approved March 2, 1867, gives to Heirs of Soldiers who died prisoners of war, for the time the soldier was so held a prisoner, at the rate of twenty-five cents per day, to be paid in the following order: 1st. To the widow; if unmarried; 2d. To the children; 3d. To the parents, to both jointly if they are living, if either is dead, to the survivor; 4th. To the brothers and sisters.

COMMUTATION FOR RATIONS,

The act of February 28, 1867, provides for the refunding of the $300 Commutation Money, where the same person was again drafted, and was required to enter the service or furnish a substitute.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS.

The act of March 2, 1867, also makes provision for the payment of the

to such soldiers as have accidentally lost their discharges.

All persons having any claims under any of the above mentioned Acts, or any other kind of claim against the United States or State Governments, can have them promptly collected, by addressing the undersigned. Information and advice cheerfully given to soldiers or their friends, free of charge.
